Sixth grade teacher Donalyn Miller describes the instructional approach she uses to turn children into readers, based on a combination of individual choice, a program of independent reading, a collection of high-interest books, and appropriate and authentic reading behavior modeling.

501 Sci

Science at the edge : conversations with the leading scientific thinkers of today.

Updated ed. New York : Union Square Press, c2008.

Introduction. The expanding third culture / by John Brockman -- Part I. Homo sapiens -- The new humanists / John Brockman -- A new scientific synthesis of human history / Jared Diamond -- A biological understanding of human nature / Steven Pinker -- Getting human nature right / Helena Cronin -- Natural-born cyborgs? / Andy Clark -- Animal minds / Marc D. Hauser -- The evolution of cooking / Richard Wrangham -- The computational perspective / Daniel C. Dennett -- What shape are a German shepherd's ears? / Stephen M. Kosslyn -- Darwin y la tercera cultura / Lee Smolin, Marc D. Hauser, Robert Trivers -- Part II. Machina sapiens? -- Rebooting civilization II / Seth Lloyd ... [et al.] -- Software is a cultural solvent / Jordan B. Pollack -- The second coming : a manifesto / David Gelernter -- Making living systems / Rodney Brooks -- Making minds / Hans Moravec -- Quantum computation / David Deutsch -- What comes after minds? / Marvin Minsky -- The singularity / Ray Kurzweil -- One half of a manifesto / Jaron Lanier -- Part III. Evolving universes-- -- How fast, how small, and how powerful? : Moore's law and the ultimate laptop / Seth Lloyd -- A golden age of cosmology / Alan Guth -- The cyclic universe / Paul

- Steinhardt -- Theories of the brane / Lisa Randall -- Loop quantum gravity / Lee Smolin -- A look ahead / Martin Rees.
- 510 Ste Stewart, Ian. Letters to a young mathematician. New York : Basic Books, 2007, c2006.
Why do math? -- How I almost became a lawyer -- The breadth of mathematics -- Hasn't it all been done? -- Surrounded by math -- How mathematicians think -- How to learn math -- Fear of proofs -- Can't computers solve everything? -- Mathematical storytelling -- Going for the jugular -- Blockbusters -- Impossible problems -- The career ladder -- Pure or applied? -- Where do you get those crazy ideas? -- How to teach math -- The mathematical community -- Pigs and pick-up trucks -- Pleasures and perils of collaboration -- Is God a mathematician?. Leading research mathematician Ian Stewart reflects on the things he wishes he had known when he was a student, addressing a wide range of topics related to his field of study, including what mathematics is, why it's worth doing, the link between logic and proof, the role of beauty of mathematics, and many others.
- 523.1 Fle Fleisher, Paul. The big bang. Minneapolis : Twenty-First Century Books, c2006.
Finding our place in the universe -- Einstein predicts an expanding universe -- Evidence supporting the big bang theory -- Open, closed, and flat universes -- Questions yet to be answered. Presents an introduction to the big bang, explaining the basic concepts behind the theory of how the universe was formed. Includes illustrations.
- 523.1 Uni Universe. London ; : DK, 2008, c2005.
Presents an illustrated overview of the universe, including information on the solar system, constellations, a night-sky atlas, a short history of astronomy, the tools used to observe outer space and the stars, and more.
- 530 Kak Kaku, Michio. Physics of the impossible : a scientific exploration into the world of phasers, force fields, teleportation, and time travel. 1st Anchor books ed. New York : Anchor Books, c2008.
Force fields -- Invisibility -- Phasers and death stars -- Teleportation -- Telepathy -- Psychokinesis -- Robots -- Extraterrestrials and UFOs -- Starships -- Anti-matter and anti-universes -- Faster than light -- Time travel -- Parallel universes -- Perpetual motion machines -- Clairvoyance -- Future of the impossible. Physicist Michio Kaku explains how devices commonly found in science fiction, including death rays, force fields, and invisibility cloaks, may become commonplace in the future, using real-life examples of other technologies that were considered impossible, including televisions, lasers, and atomic bombs, to prove his point.
- 530 Lar Larson, Daniel. The nature of matter. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Inner space -- The rise of the atom -- Organizing atoms -- The periodic table of the elements -- Chemical bonds -- Radioactivity -- Nuclear energy -- Elementary particle physics. Describes the relationships or laws within the science of matter and energy; and contains real-life examples that provides insight into the principles that govern the earth.
- 530.4 Wes West, Krista. States of matter : gases, liquids, and solids. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
Nature's matter mover -- The behavior of molecules -- Solids, liquids, and gases -- Evaporation and condensation -- Melting and freezing -- Sublimation and deposition -- Other states of matter -- Phase changes at home -- Phase changes in industry. An introduction to states of matter that teaches children why all substances are either gases, liquids, or solids and how each substance can be transformed.
- 531 Bug Bug, Amy. Forces and motion. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
Describes the science of forces and motion, discussing equations related to motion; providing diagrams; and covering speed, acceleration, vectors,

Newton's first law, air pressure, and other topics.

- 531 Fol Foland, Andrew Dean. Energy. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
What is energy? -- Kinetic energy of a skater: 5,000 joules -- Potential energy of Liberty's torch : 3.4 million joules -- Heat power of the sun in 1 m<sup>2</sup> : 1,500 watts -- Electrical energy of an AA battery : 8 watt-hours -- Chemical energy of 1 kilogram of sugar : 17 million joules -- Relativistic energy of 1 kilogram of helium fusion : 270 trillion joules -- Household energy use : 43 kilowatt-hours -- Conclusion. Color photographs and illustrations explore the many forms of energy including kinetic, potential, electrical, chemical, thermal, and nuclear.
- 539.7 Man Manning, Phillip, 1936-. Atoms, molecules, and compounds. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
Meet the atom -- The quantum model -- The nucleus -- The electrons -- The elements -- Chemical reactions : making molecules -- Chemical bonds -- Common compounds, uncommon results. Presents an introduction to the basic concepts of chemistry, in simple text with illustrations, providing information on atoms, molecules, the periodic table of elements, chemical bonding, compounds, synthetics, and more.
- 541 Lew Lew, Kristi. Chemical reactions. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
An exploration of chemical reactions that covers atomic structure, bonding, the different types of chemical bonds, and reaction rates, and discusses how chemical reactions are used in digestion, to diagnose diseases, and to solve crimes.
- 541 Man Manning, Phillip, 1936-. Chemical bonds. New York : Chelsea House, c2009.
Stardust -- Electrons -- Getting together -- Ionic bonds -- Sharing electrons -- The metallic bond -- Intermolecular bonding -- Glossary. Examines the nature of various chemical bonds, explaining how they form, how they are broken, and how they influence every aspect of day-to-day life.
- 546 Ham Ham, Becky. The periodic table. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
What is the periodic table? -- The history of the periodic table -- What elements are made of -- Alkali metals and alkaline earth metals -- Transition metals -- Lanthanides, actinides and transuranium elements -- Poor metals, metalloids and nonmetals: the BNCOs -- Halogens and noble gases. Describes the history of the periodic table; examines the elements, including alkali and alkaline earth metals, transition metals, lanthanides, halogens, noble gases, and others; and provides a table of atomic masses.
- 546 Lew Lew, Kristi. Acids and bases. New York : Chelsea House, c2009.
An introduction to acids and bases, explaining what they are, and looking at acids and bases in chemistry, industry, the human body, and nature.
- 546 McD McDowell, Julie. Metals. New York : Chelsea House, c2008.
Introducing metals -- Alkali metals -- Alkaline earth metals -- Transition metals -- Metals and chemical reactions -- Metals in our world -- Metals and our bodies and health. Explores the basic characteristics of different types of metals, how certain metals are classified, and the importance of various metals to the environment.
- 546 Wes West, Krista. Carbon chemistry. New York : Chelsea House, c2009.
Introduction to carbon chemistry -- A brief review of atoms and elements -- Carbon compound chemistry -- Biomolecules -- The carbon cycle -- The atmosphere and climate -- Global warming -- Carbon and energy -- Carbon products. An introduction to carbon chemistry, featuring a brief review of atoms and elements, and covering carbon compounds, biomolecules, the carbon cycle, global warming, carbon products, and other topics.
- 549 Sch Schumann, Walter. Minerals of the world. 2nd ed. New York : Sterling, c2008.
A comprehensive field guide with full-color, illustrated photographs that identify and explain over 500 minerals.

- 551 Tho Thompson, David M. (David Mattoon), 1977-. Processes that shape the earth. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Introduction to physical geology -- Overview of planet earth -- Plate tectonics -- Rocks -- Freshwater -- Historical geology -- Glaciers -- Wind -- The shoreline -- Humans -- Glossary. Describes some of the forces that shape the physical geography of the Earth, including glaciers, wind, water, and others, and discusses the theory of plate tectonics, the rock cycle, and the origin and history of the planet.
- 551.21 Kor Kornprobst, Jacques. Living mountains : how and why volcanoes erupt. Missoula, Mont. : Mountain Press Pub. Co., 2006.
Presents an introduction to the study of volcanoes, explaining why some volcanoes ooze lava and others explode clouds of ash, how different lavas form through the partial melting of the earth's rocks, and why volcanoes occur and how they work.
- 551.46 Oce Ocean. London ; : DK Pub., 2008, c2006.
A heavily illustrated overview of the oceans that describes ocean environments, geology, circulation, and climate and profiles hundreds of ocean-living animal and plant species.
- 551.5 Buc Buckley, Bruce. Weather : a visual guide. Buffalo, N.Y. : Firefly Books, 2008.
Describes how weather systems are created, including hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, fires, and droughts, and the effect of climate on plants, animals, and humans; and examines the latest research on changing climate with particular reference to vital issues like global warming and ozone depletion.
- 551.55 Lea Leatherman, Stephen P. Hurricanes. Minneapolis, MN : Voyageur Press, 2008.
Earth's fiercest storms -- Hurricane Basics -- Unlocking hurricane mysteries -- Hurricane forecasting -- Living with hurricanes -- Cyclones and typhoons -- Climate change and hurricanes -- Glossary -- Index. Discusses the power of hurricanes, explains how they form, examines the science of hurricane forecasting, looks at the hazards associated with the storms, identifies the areas of the U.S. that are most vulnerable to hurricanes, and considers the link between hurricanes and climate change.
- 551.55 Tre Treaster, Joseph B. Hurricane force : in the path of America's deadliest storms. New York : Kingfisher, 2007.
Describes how violent storms and hurricanes are formed and notes some of history's greatest storms to hit the United States such as Hurricane Katrina.
- 551.56 Hoe Hoeppe, Götz, 1969-. Why the sky is blue : discovering the color of life. Princeton, N.J. : Princeton University Press, c2007.
Of philosophers and the color blue -- A blue mixture : light and darkness -- Aerial perspective -- A color of the first order -- Basic phenomenon, or optical illusion? -- A polarized sky -- Lord Rayleigh's scattering -- Molecular reality -- Ozone's blue hour -- The color of life. Discusses the science of why Earth's sky is blue, describes what the sky would look like without ozone, and explores the answers to "Why is the sky blue?" that cultures have given throughout history.
- 551.6 Sch Schmidt, Gavin. Climate change : picturing the science. 1st ed. New York : W.W. Norton, c2009.
Contains ten essays in which scientists explore the symptoms, diagnosis, and possible cures for climate change.
- 551.9 Cob Cobb, Allan B. Earth chemistry. New York : Chelsea House, c2009.
Earth -- The atmosphere -- The chemical processes in the atmosphere -- The hydrosphere -- Chemical and physical processes in the hydrosphere -- The lithosphere -- Chemical processes in the lithosphere -- Biosphere.

- Explores the various chemical and physical changes on the Earth, describing how the atmosphere, hydrosphere, lithosphere, and biosphere interact with one another.
- 553.6 Wel Welland, Michael, 1946-. Sand : the never-ending story. Berkeley : University of California Press, c2009.
Individuals : birth and character -- Tribes : the strange world of granular materials -- Sand and imagination I : very large numbers of very small things -- Societies on the move : a journey to the sea -- Moving on : waves, tides, and storms -- Blowing in the wind : desert landscapes -- Witness : testaments of sand -- Sand and imagination II : stories, medium, and muse -- Servant : sand in our lives -- Outward and onward : beyond Earth, beyond the present. Discusses various scientific issues related to sand, including sand forensics, the physics of granular materials, sedimentology, archaeology, planetary exploration, and tales of its ordinary, and dramatic, roles in history, commerce, imagination, and invention.
- 576.8 Coy Coyne, Jerry A., 1949-. Why evolution is true. New York : Viking, 2009.
Discusses evolution, arguing that the theory makes predictions that are consistently supported by data, covering biogeography, geology, anatomy, genetics, molecular biology, and physiology, and examines how the ideas of creationism fall outside the realms of science in terms of evidence or proof.
- 578.4 Bon Bonner, John Tyler. Why size matters : from bacteria to blue whales. Princeton, N.J. : Princeton University Press, c2006.
Explores the physics of size as it affects biology, the evolution of size over geological time, and the role of size in the function and longevity of living things.
- 581.7 May May, Suellen. Invasive aquatic and wetland plants. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Introduces aquatic and wetland plants and their habitats, explains what makes some of them invasive, describes several kinds of such plants, and discusses management.
- 581.7 May May, Suellen. Invasive terrestrial plants. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Introduces terrestrial plants and their habitats, explains what makes some of them invasive, describes several kinds of such plants, and discusses management.
- 582.16097 Nat National Wildlife Federation field guide to trees of North America. New York : Sterling Pub. Co., c2008.
- 591.6 May May, Suellen. Invasive aquatic and wetland animals. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Investigates the threat of various species of invasive aquatic and wetland animals to the natural population of marine life, how their introduction has affected the marine ecosystem, and efforts to control them.
- 591.718 May May, Suellen. Invasive terrestrial animals. New York : Chelsea House, c2007.
Presents a brief study of a number of invasive terrestrial animals such as the Emerald Ash Borer and Brown Treesnake; and examines various methods for controlling or destroying them.
- 612 Lab Laberge, Monique. Biochemistry. New York : Chelsea House Publishers, c2008.
Provides an overview of biochemistry, discussing amino and nucleic acids, proteins, enzymes, lipids, biological membranes, metabolic pathways, photosynthesis, and the Human Genome Project.
- 612.8 Gil Gilbert, Avery N. What the nose knows : the science of scent in everyday life. 1st ed. New York : Crown Publishers, c2008.
Discusses all things relating to the sense of smell, dispelling various myths relating to noses and their functions, including a dog's smelling ability is not stronger than a human's, and perfumers does not actually have superior

- 973.91 McC McCartney, Laton. The Teapot Dome Scandal : how big oil bought the Harding White House and tried to steal the country. Random House trade pbk. ed. New York : Random House Trade Paperbacks, 2009.
In The Teapot Dome Scandal, acclaimed author Laton McCartney tells the amazing, complex, and at times ribald story of how Big Oil handpicked Warren G. Harding, an obscure Ohio senator, to serve as our twenty-third president. Harding and his so-called "oil cabinet" made it possible for the oilmen to secure vast oil reserves that had been set aside for use by the U.S. Navy. In exchange, the oilmen paid off senior government officials, bribed newspaper publishers, and covered the GOP campaign debt. When news of the scandal finally emerged, the consequences were disastrous for the nation and for the principles in the plot to bilk the taxpayers: Harding's administration was hamstrung; Americans' confidence in their government plummeted; Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall was indicted, convicted, and incarcerated; and others implicated in the affair suffered similarly dire fates. Stonewalling by members of Harding's circle kept a lid on the story--witnesses developed "faulty" memories or fled the country, and important documents went missing--but contemporary records newly made available to McCartney reveal a shocking, revelatory picture of just how far-reaching the affair was, how high the stakes, and how powerful the conspirators.-- From publisher description.

- Fic McC McCarthy, Cormac, 1933-. The road. 1st Vintage International open-market ed. New York : Vintage International, 2007, c2006.
In this postapocalyptic novel, a father and his son walk alone through burned America. Nothing moves in the ravaged landscape save the ash on the wind. It is cold enough to crack stones, and when the snow falls it is gray. They sky is dark. Their destination is the coast, although they don't know what, if anything, awaits them there. They have nothing; just a pistol to defend themselves against the lawless bands that stalk the road, the clothes they are wearing, a cart of scavenged food--and each other. This book boldly imagines a future in which no hope remains, but in which the father and his son, "each the other's world entire," are sustained by love. It is an unflinching meditation on the worst and the best that we are capable of: ultimate destructiveness, desperate tenacity, and the tenderness that keeps two people alive in the face of total devastation.--From publisher description.
